

THE FRONTLINE OF CRIMINAL PSYCHOLOGY IS NO PLACE FOR THE FAINT-HEARTED

Dr Watson-Munro is Australia's most distinguished criminal psychologist. He has assessed over 30,000 'persons of interest' in some of the nations most high profile cases including Melbourne gangster Alphonse Gangitano and Julian Knight, the perpetrator of the Hoddle Street gun massacre.

As Tim's public profile grew through the 1990s, his proximity to evil led him to a devastating personal crossroads - a $2,000-a-week cocaine habit and his brilliant career and hard-won reputation in crisis.

Join Tim as he provides a unique insight into the lives and minds of the psychopaths we share our world with and describes how psychological resilience of forensic experts can be improved.
